David Miller practices civil litigation with an emphasis on complex matters. As an experienced litigator, David has counseled both plaintiffs and defendants in a wide variety of legal issues ranging from small claims cases with a few thousand dollars at issue, to class actions with tens of millions of dollars on the line. His attention to detail, sound acumen, unwavering ethics and steadfast reliability empower him to efficiently and effectively handle all phases of a legal dilemma, from the pre-litigation stage, through the entire litigation process, and in appeals.

David assists individuals, insurers, businesses, property owners, condominium/homeowner associations, general contractors, developers, subcontractors, manufacturers, suppliers and design professionals with commercial/business disputes, construction matters, personal injury claims, premises liability claims, general liability claims, class actions, product liability matters, and in transactions.

David has been a Wellington resident for over twenty-five years. When he is not assisting clients, he enjoys spending time with his family, cooking meals from scratch, traveling, fishing and working out.
